Q→ How did the abolition of East India Company's trade monopoly under the Charter Acts of 1813 and 1833 accelerate India's transformation from a commerical outpost to a full-fleged colony?

Answer → During 1750's and 1800's process of industrializa--tion began in England. This led to the growth in factories and manufacturing units.
These factories required huge amount of raw materials and a market as well for their finished goods.

The business lobby in England demanded the British government to end the monopoly of EIC in Indian trade.

* Earlier the EIC used to trade Indian Handicrafts and other goods in markets of England with huge profits but after industrialization the business lobby of Britain forced the government to impose tarrifs on Indian Goods.

• This led to the downfall of Indian manufacturing industries and the arrival of British manufactured goods in Indian markets.

→ To expedite the process, Charter Act, 1813 was enacted.

* This charter ended the monopoly of EIC in Indian trade and allowed other business houses to Enter Indian Market.

* To make, Indians use British manufactured goods, it was necessary to impose British cultural traits on Indians, to make India a proper colony.

As in Colonies, the colonizer imposes political, economic and cultural control.

The British government started the colonisation process by implementing Charter Act, 1813.

→ to impose Cultural control, Rs 1 lakh was alloted for modern education.

→ Political Control - All the possessions were termed as British possessions.

→ Economic Control - Indians manufacturing industries were destroyed by imposing huge tariffs and the British manufactured goods were introduced in Indian markets.

In b/w Charter Acts of 1813 and Charter Act of 1833 many steps were taken ~~to~~ to modernize Indian society ~~to~~ and to make citizens accept ~~Indian [illegible]~~ British goods.

In Charter 1813, missionaries were also allowed to enter India to impose their religion on Indian citizens.

Colony →
- → Political
- → Economic
- → Cultural

All these interest were realised by the Charter Act of 1813 & 1833.

The process of colonization reached its peak after the enactment of Charter Act of 1888, when the trade monopoly of EIC (China & tea) were completely abolished.

This gave the business house of England to trade in India and hence it accelerated India's transformation from a commercial outpost to a full-fleged colony.
