

Day - 1

Answer

In 1773 British crown passed regulating act to regulate the affairs of East India company, In 1793 thorough legislative assembly it made first charter Act, But, till 1813 various problems started arise like due to continental system Napoleon Bonaparte Ban the british product in his allies nation.

Therefore to avail more chance to British traders, company passed charter act of 1813 in ~~the~~ which major provisions are: following: -

- i) company monopoly ended in trade except china and tea.
- ii) christian missionaries are now allowed to preached about their religion.

iii) Company should invest 1 lakh per year for education

After

the implementation of these policies company lost its monopoly, now it started looking for more opportunities for revenue. as after 1826, treaty of andam with dutch. it also stopped the trade <sup>in</sup> Malay Archipelago.

in between this course one more charter act passed in 1833. in which various provisions are made.

i) company's monopoly over trade with china and in tea ended.

ii) Governor ~~gen~~ general Bengal declared as Governor general of India. All the civil and military powers vested ~~on~~ <sup>in</sup> him.

Therefore, Bombay and Madras lost their legislative power. and Lord William Bentinck was made first Governor General of India.

iii) Indian law commission (1834) was established to codify all Indian laws under the chairmanship of Lord Macaulay.

As these policies made to interfere in the affairs of Indians, and to influence their culture. they also started <sup>to</sup> make English as compulsory language as it was mentioned Macaulay's minutes on education {1835}.

their motive behind this was to make Indian to help in their various work to run the affairs of Indian territory.

As, after educated person they better assist them in their various work.

As, we all know that in Britain their is industrial revolution is going on. in 18th century.

therefore they are in search of big market to sold their manufactured textiles and different luxurious items.

so, now, they started to extracting raw materials from india
for their factories purposes like production of indigo. etc.

As, in order to compete in european market they need cheap labour and raw materials. and india. is fulfilling

this condition. therefore they transform india ~~to~~ into colonial territory and strated exploiting it economically with the help of political and military control.
